

Town meeting resumes June 10

by Arlene Surprenant

Wilmington residents will flock to town meeting on Monday evening, June 10 to deliberate and vote on a proposed $33,943,698 budget for fiscal 1992. The annual meeting was continued from April 27 to give town officials a chance to get a firmer handle on the local aid situation.

In a budget update before selectmen on Monday, Town Manager Michael Caira recommended the town estimate its local aid figure on a statewide reduction of $326 million. Based on that figure, Wilmington will have to further reduce its proposed budget by $218,853. This deficit will reportedly be shared equally by the municipal government and the Wilmington School Department, which will each need to make further cuts totalling $105,049. The remainder of the deficit ($8,755) will have to be borne by the Shawsheen Tech, said Caira.

Caira warned until the local aid package is actually on Governor William Weld's desk, by June 15, the numbers could continue to change on an almost daily basis.

"It has been a long and involved process," Caira said, adding he still hopes to meet his initial goals of maintaining services to citizens and avoiding major reductions in personnel.

One dead, two hurt in Lowell shooting

Wilmington residents were shocked on Friday morning to learn of the shooting of three local men in Lowell early that morning. One man was killed.

Dead is Robert F. Barry, 26, of Chandler Road. Wounded were Joel Breen, 36, of 77 Middlesex Ave. and Steven McGinley, 30, of 104 Middlesex Ave., all of Wilmington.

The men were shot shortly before 2 a.m. outside an apartment building at 25-27 Rogers St. in Lowell, near the Concord River. The men had allegedly bought cocaine from someone at that address, then returned for some unknown reason. The apartment was ransacked. They then returned to the apartment about 1:30 and began arguing with the person who had sold them the drugs. The argument spilled outside the building where the shootings occurred.

The victims were found lying in the street by police and people who gathered from nearby barrooms.

Barry was the son of Leo and Katherine Barry. An avid musician, he was employed as a landscaper by the Stillwater Co. of Wilmington. He was shot in the head, and was pronounced dead at 3:47 a.m. at St. Joseph's Hospital.

At about 5 a.m. Lowell police arrested a man trying to climb out a rear window at 25 Agawam St., a building which had been surrounded by police. The suspect gave police a false name, but was held on a murder charge. He was later identified as Luis Manuel Otero.

In the spotlight

Davide DiCenso found himself at the center of a controversy this weekend after school officials barred him from graduation ceremonies. His mother obtained an injunction, and he was allowed to take part in the ceremonies. He is shown accepting his diploma from Dr. Shirley Callan. DiCenso was ranked sixth in the class.

Will school's drug & alcohol policy survive?

Wilmington school officials are hoping to salvage the school policy on drug and alcohol abuse. School officials were served with a federal court order overturning a school decision Friday night ten minutes before convocation ceremonies were to begin. The decision had barred a senior from graduation ceremonies for allegedly being drunk at the senior prom.

The order was issued by Judge Rya Zobel. The basis of the claim against school officials was that they supposedly denied due process when they suspended Davide DiCenso from graduation ceremonies without a hearing.

DiCenso and three other male seniors were suspended after they allegedly showed up drunk at the senior prom at the Danversport Yacht Club on Wednesday night. The suspension was carried out under the school's drug and alcohol policy, which calls for an eight-day suspension of any student caught in violation of the policy.

Supt. of Schools William Fay said that when the students were notified of the suspension, they were told that their parents could go to the school on Thursday to discuss the matter with officials. Three of the parents called the school. DiCenso's parents called a lawyer, Paul Wilson.

DiCenso, a three-letter athlete, graduated sixth in his class. He was allowed to participate in the convocation on Friday night and the graduation on Sunday. However, he sat out a baseball game on Saturday in which he had been scheduled to pitch.

His mother, Liliana DiCenso said she begged School Committee Chair Dr. Shirley Callan for a meeting on Friday morning, but was told the meeting could not be held until Wednesday. Therefore, she contacted a lawyer.

"Could I allow this child who has had such a perfect record to have no graduation?" she said. "I just want to protect his rights."

Mrs. DiCenso said that her son was not drinking at the prom. She said he got sick at the prom from having an empty stomach.

Fay said that Wilson called Town Counsel Alan Altman on Friday afternoon, inquiring about due process. Altman told Wilson there could be a hearing at 5:30. Instead of going to Altman's office, Wilson went to U.S. District Court in Boston to obtain a restraining order.

Supt. Fay said that in response to the charge of denial of due process, school officials granted it on three occasions, and it was waived. First, the parents were given and signed the school's drug and alcohol policy at the start of the school year. Second, they were offered a meeting on Thursday. And third, they were offered the hearing on Friday afternoon.

Fay said that the school was (Continued on Page 8)

Graduation on Sunday at Alumni Field was quiet and uncontroversial, despite the background of a federal court injunction.

Sunny but cool weather provided a perfect setting as the graduates marched onto the field with hundreds of spectators filling the grandstands. With beach balls and bubbles floating above the graduates, the crowd listened to the traditional speakers.

Principal Paul Fleming proudly announced that graduates had been presented with $76,400 worth of scholarships at the convocation.

Valedictorian Susan Sweet spoke of the lessons learned, that above the academic material were the lessons learned through their relationships with each other. Looking to the future, she said, "Life can be great, and we have the power to make it greater."

"The lessons about life that we learned here will be the ones we won't be able to live without," she said.

Class Essayist Christine Elia told the graduates that life would be different for them whether they entered college or the work force.

Confessing that he had not looked forward to making his speech, Salutatorian Richard Barletta spoke of each student being bonded by a common goal, to be the best that they can, to be someone that they can be proud of.

A Teachers' Association address by Matthew Joyce noted that some of the seniors had paid $1000 for their prom.

The presentation of diplomas to the 158 graduates proceeded in rapid-fire order, with Vice Principal Edward Woods calling off names. The seniors paraded across the platform, where Dr. Shirley Callan presented the diplomas. Principal Paul Fleming, sometimes informal but always deeply sincere, offered a congratulatory handshake, often a "high five."

The Class of 1991 closed the chapter in their lives, marching off the field to Pomp and Circumstance, played by the Wilmington High School Band.

Dropped in court, DiCenso case goes to school committee

by Arlene Surprenant

The case of Davide DiCenso vs. the Town of Wilmington was dismissed Tuesday on an order from Judge D.J. Wolf of the United States District Court. In his order, Judge Wolf stated that Judge Rya Zobel's issuance of a temporary restraining order May 31 and the "subsequent passage of time" have rendered the case "moot." The judge then dismissed the case, without prejudice. According to school board Chairman Dr. Shirley Callan, the decision also dismissed her committee's right to be heard on the issue through an appeal. However, she said, Supt. William Fay and committee members are discussing the probability of sending letters to Judge Wolf protesting his decision.

DiCenso, an honor student in this year's graduating class, was barred from participating in his graduation and other end-of-the-year activities by Principal Paul Fleming Wednesday after he became ill and showed signs of drinking at that night's senior prom. Three other seniors were also suspended under the school's drug and alcohol abuse policy. DiCenso's mother, Liliana, obtained a temporary injunction from Judge Zobel at 5 p.m. Friday on a claim that her son was denied due process under the U.S. Constitution. Town Counsel Alan Altman disputed that claim in a June 4 letter to Dr. Callan saying that the due process requirements were satisfied last Wednesday and Thursday. As a result of the injunction, all four seniors were allowed to participate in Sunday's graduation as well as other ceremonies.

In related action, a hearing had been set up for tonight (Wednesday) at 8 p.m. at the request of the DiCensos. Altman said in his letter the DiCensos wished to cancel the hearing before the school committee. Altman said he felt the hearing would be "desirable in order to give everyone an opportunity to hear and explain the facts."

Dr. Callan told this paper, in a quick poll of committeemen Tuesday night, her board was divided on whether or not to hold the hearing. However, discussion of the school's drug and alcohol abuse policy is on the agenda for tonight's committee meeting.

According to Dr. Callan, there has been speculation that Judge Zobel's judgement was based on a lack of adequate facts. She said her committee "unanimously supports" action taken by Fleming and Fay following the events at the prom.

DiCenso was in the Peer Leadership program at the high school and counseled younger students in the dangers of drug and alcohol abuse, Dr. Callan said. Besides receiving an award for his participation in the program, DiCenso also received the John Brooks award at Friday's Academic Convocation.

Duplex touches off heated debate

by Arlene Surprenant
 A proposed duplex for Silverhurst Avenue off Lake Street prompted heated debate at Monday's board of selectmen's meeting in Wilmington. In the end, selectmen voted four to one to allow the Local Initiative process to continue to build the affordable units on the 21,813 square foot lot foreclosed on by the Commercial Bank and Trust Co.
 Carole Hamilton, head of the local housing partnership which has approved the project, outlined the proposal for the board. She explained the home is being built by developers Linn Anderson, Peter DeGennaro, and Dick Stuart of Thomas Realty Trust according to a revised plan already presented to her board. The plan calls for a home with a split level entrance and a long driveway to make the project more visually appealing to the neighborhood. The bank recently entered into a purchase and sales agreement with the developers, who paid $70,000 for the lot and the vacant house and garage which sits on the property.
 Hamilton explained, in order for the process to continue, selectmen would have to give their approval. The next step would be to submit the application to the state Executive Office of Communities and Development and go through the board of appeals for a comprehensive permit to allow the duplex in Wilmington. When built, the two units would be sold to Wilmington residents for approximately $65,000 and $95,000.
 While most selectmen favored the proposal, Chester Bruce said he couldn't support the duplex since neighbors feared its impact on their area and quality of life. He questioned why the developers couldn't renovate and sell the home already on site. Hamilton said that wouldn't be economically feasible from the bank's perspective.
 "You can't do it. We have had good planning in this town," protested Dan Gillis, a member of the housing authority and a former member of the planning board. Gillis targeted Chapter 774, which covers the comprehensive permit process, and said this law allows the town to bypass local zoning bylaws.
 At one point board Chairman Bob Doucette chastized Gillis for taking after the bank for suggesting the whole idea.

 "I'm not going to let you degrade any business in this town," said Doucette.
 "Just let me talk," Gillis cried out. Neighbors, too, spoke out against the project saying the area is too congested and Silverhurst too narrow a road for access. Mitch Dembowski urged the board to have some consideration for his neighborhood.
 "You don't live on that street," Mary Lynch told officials, adding, "You can build affordable housing but not in that area."
 "What we have to do here is weigh and compromise," said Michael Donovan, a member of both the housing authority and the partnership. Donovan and other partnership members urged neighbors to weigh the benefit of providing lower cost homes against the negative aspects of the duplex.
 "We all have to give a little bit," said Ray Forest adding, "no one's trying to cram anything down anyone's throat."
 A suggestion to widen Silverhurst is not possible, according to officials, because that road is a private way and abutters would have to pick up part of the cost.

Ugolini resigns

Donald Ugolini, a long time member of the Wilmington Conservation Commission, resigned from the board May 23.
 In his letter to Town Manager Michael Caira, Ugolini said his reasons for leaving are "mixed" and have to do with a lack of "fair play" by some people at town hall.
 Ugolini urged Caira to continue to support the commissioners "because they are a dedicated bunch of people giving up much of their personal family time to do the right thing for the people of our town."
 The resignation is said to involve an old excise tax bill which Ugolini recently received. The bill had some five years' interest added on. Ugolini tried to have it abated, saying he was unaware of the bill, but to no avail.

Approval of reduction list delayed again

by Arlene Surprenant
 A divided school board decided Wednesday to pass over further discussion of the RIF (Reduction in Force) policy until right before town meeting to give talks between the teacher's union and the board a chance to succeed. The RIF list contains the names of 22 teachers who are slated to be laid off next year.
 Both sides had agreed to meet within the next week to discuss the proposed FY'92 budget. Committeemen said though the talks should not be considered collective bargaining, if fruitful, discussion might save teachers' jobs and do away with the RIF list.
 Supt. William Fay recommended passing over approval of the list. His recommendation was vocally endorsed by Phil Fenton and Aldo Caira. Both Dr. Shirley Callan, chairman, and Andrea Paglia were against the move.
 "I feel a moral obligation to let the teachers know (now) if they have a job or not," said Callan. Paglia noted teachers who are laid off could be recalled at a later date.

 The board also voted to disband the first budget subcommittee and form a new one. This move was not accomplished easily and led to some heated comments back and forth. The first subcommittee consisted of Callan, Peggy Kane, Caira, and school attorney Alan Altman. Fay also sat in on Tuesday's talks. Fenton motioned to form a smaller subcommittee consisting of Caira, Altman, and Fay to allow for "a quicker, more expedient process." WTA attorney Joe Murphy had suggested a smaller group on both sides might be more workable.
 Callan and Paglia both objected to Fay's presence on the subcommittee. They said it would be as if Fay was negotiating his own contract. Kane pointed out Fay was helpful during discussion Tuesday and the meeting would not be for the purpose of collective bargaining. Other members replied the meeting's results could impact all union contracts if the teachers agree to freeze all or part of their seven percent pay raise.
 Callan and Paglia also wanted to keep the original subcommittee. Callan felt the original group better represented the feeling of her board. They were overruled in a four to three vote.

Board won't rescind Waterford approval

by Arlene Surprenant
 After extensive deliberations, the Wilmington Planning Board decided Tuesday not to rescind approval of the Waterford Estates subdivision. Instead, the board voted to file a Certificate of Non-Performance placing the remaining eight vacant lots back under the restrictions of the April, 1988 covenant. This, in effect, makes the lots unavailable for building or sale until outstanding subdivision work, like the uncompleted roadway, is finished as promised.
 Developer Steve Lawrenson had built six of the lots before developing financial problems and filing for bankruptcy. The subdivision is currently facing foreclosure proceedings. Planners have been discussing the possibility of rescinding their approval of the subdivision for breach of condition on the part of the developer in filing a proper bond. Lawrenson and representatives of Woburn National Bank, which holds the first mortgage on the remaining lots, urged members in April not to revoke their approval. They said the outstanding work would be done faster if the board pursued other options available to them. Homeowners in the subdivision agreed.
 The options were outlined by Town Counsel Alan Altman in a recent letter to the board. Altman said members could either rescind their approval for breach of compliance, ask the building inspector not to issue further building permits, or revoke lot releases for lots not having a certificate of occupancy and file a Certificate of Non-Performance. The board favored the third option.

SAVINGS FOR CONDO OWNERS
 Condominium owners have long been able to take advantage of the same mortgage and property tax deductions as owners of single family homes. There's another tax benefit available to condo owners and homeowners who contribute to capital improvement reserves in a neighborhood association or condo group. These costs can be added to the tax basis of the home to limit the taxable gain when it is sold.
 Though the monthly contribution may not seem large, the total over the years can be sizable. And today's modern condos or neighborhoods that support many amenities - pool, tennis court, perhaps a workout facility - need to keep a larger amount of money in reserve.
 It's advisable to have a copy of the association's annual budget to indicate what percentage of the monthly maintenance payment is allocated to capital improvements reserves.

Health officials seek odor plan

by Arlene Surprenant

Residents in the vicinity of the Raffi and Swanson plant on Eames Street are seeking some relief from continuing odor problems. On Monday night, they received some promise of relief from the Wilmington Board of Health.

Health officials asked company representatives for a plan of action to address the odor nuisance. They also reviewed a police report submitted by Officer Stephen Mauriello, who responded to an alarm at the plant May 11. After entering the premises, wrote Mauriello, he and his partner found strong chemical odors, leaking steel drums and puddles on the floor, and a pipe under pressure all in a closed environment with no ventilation. Mauriello likened the atmosphere to a 1930's science fiction movie.

Walter Greeley, one of the new owners of the company, said he was "somewhat taken aback" by the report. He explained the plant was not in operation May 11 since pipes had been taken apart for maintenance work. Greeley added the smell might have come from solvents used in that work since acrylates thought to be the odor culprit are stored in another area.

Greeley told the board, since August, company officials have made strides to try to control the odors. He said there have been changes in the scrubber solution, in the vents, and a malfunctioning pump has been repaired. Greeley also pointed out it was "very frustrating" trying to pinpoint the source of the odors.

Chairman Jim Ficociello said while the company's intentions might be good, the matter was still "of some concern to us" since the nuisance impacts neighbors' quality of life. He reminded the owner the chemicals in use at the plant are both noxious and volatile.

Several neighbors were in attendance to express their feelings about the ongoing nuisance.

"I live there 24 hours a day and I'm sick of it," said Eric Cregan of Morse Avenue. He said he and his wife Martha purchased their home a few years ago unaware of the odor problems in the area. Martha added the odors were an "almost daily" occurrence.

"I'm not going to live inside my house all summer long," said Vera Scolastico, a long time advocate for cleaner air in South Wilmington.

Some residents questioned if the chemicals were affecting their health. Both Greeley and Ficociello replied there was no evidence the reportedly small concentration of chemicals were hazardous to anyone's health.

The board instructed Health Director Greg Erickson to charge the maximum $300 per day fine for each odor release. Members also asked for an update from the owner in two weeks.

Greeley assured neighbors "we do care" and invited them to call the company whenever the smell is evident.

He never stopped smiling

by Larz F. Neilson

The funeral mass at St. Thomas Church on Tuesday morning for Bob Barry was described by one person as a celebration of his life. There wasn't a dry eye in the church.

His friends described Bob as a special sort of person. "There's very few people like him," said Steve Ritchie, a life-long friend.

Bob was horribly burned in a gasoline fire in 1978. After spending long months in the Shriners Burns Center in recovery, he would return to visit and entertain other young patients. He had a most durable sense of humor, which served as his internal support system. His friends said he had more guts than you could imagine, enduring years of pain. His scarred face always had a smile, and there was always a joke up Bob's sleeve.

His smile was probably his best feature — certainly it was what his friends loved most about him. He was a "How ya doin'?" type of guy, always ready to share a laugh. He wouldn't think twice about jumping around, giving a friend a big hug.

To his nieces and nephews, he was their "best uncle." He would pick them up and toss them around. He would play his guitar for them. Bob was one of those rare people who could play well with children.

The guitar was Bob's love. He was driven to improve, improve and improve. One story was of Bob landing a job at the Rock Pile, once known as the Palace, down in Saugus. It was going to be his big break. Don Law would be there, and there would be a crowd of thousands.

Of course, Don Law was not there, and neither was the crowd. Was Bob depressed? Not at all. There would be other opportunities. He never stopped smiling.

Bob's downfall turned out to be substance abuse. He was not a bad person, but he and two friends went to Lowell one night last week in search of cocaine. Somehow the deal went crazy, and shooting broke out. Bob was killed, and his two friends were wounded.

In spite of the headlines telling of the drug deal, that was not the story of Bob Barry, and it should not be his legacy.

Bob's legacy will be the memories that his friends carry. Their vision of his smile will live on, along with the sound of his laugh. His was not an easy life, but it was a good one, and it will be his good qualities that his friends remember.

backyard gardening

by Hugh Wiberg

There are still plenty of good looking tomato and pepper plants at the garden centers. If you have not yet attended to this annual rite of spring, get those tomato plants into the ground this weekend.

With sweet or hot peppers, go very easy on fertilizers. Peppers require a spare soil to develop properly, as opposed to tomatoes, which appreciate a handful of 5-10-5 and some bagged cow manure well mixed into each planting hole.

The first serious infestation of harmful insects descended on our garden this week. Typically, those pesky and very destructive cucumber beetles do not appear on the cukes, squash and pumpkin plants until the 10th of June, give or take a few days. With our speeded up growing season, they have shown up two weeks early. Fortunately they were noticed before they had a chance to shred the young plants.

There are two species of cucumber beetles in the northeast, the spotted and the striped. By far the most common of the two is the striped beetle. The adult beetle is about a quarter inch long with black stripes on a yellow body. Their numbers expand very quickly and it is not unusual to see a dozen or more of them at a time on a young squash plant. Left unchecked, they can make lacework of the plant in 24 hours, with most of their feeding taking place in the morning. Equally troublesome to their consuming the plant leaves is the fact that the beetles often carry a bacterial wilt disease which can wipe out an entire planting. Even the best fungicides (I like Daconil 2787) seem not to be able to control this particular wilt.

Although several bird species relish cucumber beetles, including orioles, chickadees, finches and sparrows, the birds are usually not able to keep up with the rapidly proliferating beetles.

There are some organic controls for handling this insect. One involves covering each plant from late May through June with nylon netting or some type of fine screening. Another (not altogether effective in my experience) is to sprinkle a couple of handfuls of wood ashes around the base of each plant out to 12 inches. Care should be taken to avoid getting the ashes on plant and stems.

There are two insecticides which are quite efficient at controlling cucumber beetles. One, rotenone, is organic, the other, Sevin, is not. Try rotenone first. All garden supply centers carry this natural control agent in powder form. A canister costs less than five dollars and will last all summer unless your's is a very large garden. Simply dust the leaves lightly with the powder at the first sign of beetle infestation. Reapply immediately after it rains. The most effective control agent is Sevin, although I am reluctant to recommend its use. Too many gardeners use Sevin during daylight hours, to the detriment of the native bee population. However, if you want to knock down a heavy invasion of cucumber beetles, quickly and completely, Sevin will do the job. For the sake of the many kinds of beneficial insects in and around the garden, be sure to follow mixing and application instructions to the letter. Most important, use this toxic pesticide sparingly, and only after 7:30 p.m., to allow the bees safe passage to their hives. Two applications, 10 days apart, will solve this problem.

Next week we'll discuss another serious and destructive vegetable garden insect pest, the infamous squash vine borer.

Profuse and profound apologies are offered to Mr. Wiberg and to any gardener whose cucurbits have been devoured by cucumber beetles during the past week. This column should have run last week, but somehow managed to disappear beneath the mulch. —Jfn frankly speaking

by Kevin John Sowyrda

"What do you call two hundred lawyers at the bottom of the sea?" asked actor Danny DeVito, playing a self-deprecating barrister in a recent big screen movie.

"A good start," he said, answering his own riddle.

The joke goes over well, as do hundreds of others which rightfully victimize the profession breeding at a faster pace than mosquitoes.

Enter Alan Altman, Esq., town counsel debonair, famous for his captivating public speaking.

Altman has served a controversial and feisty tenure in Wilmington for decades, making him the dean of the local government's high echelon.

Attorney Altman last graced this page when a furor erupted at the Wilmington School Committee regarding Altman's lack of attention to a legal matter. "It took him eight months to answer a basic legal question, and by the time we got his letter the school year was already over," said Tony Accardi, then chairman of the school committee and a long-time critic of the town counsel.

Some criticism of Altman might have to be taken with a grain of salt. He has the thankless task of defending the town on every matter from a workman's compensation claim to broader issues such as the recent Textron appellate tax board case, where the largest-of-all-local-business was disputing its whopping bill.

Altman's supporters contend that he is a mainstay in Wilmington government serving with distinction. "Alan Altman has a difficult job and he does it well. His experience in municipal law has been and continues to be an asset to the town," said Selectman Mark Haldane, a fellow member of the bar.

Altman's detractors contend that it's hard for a "country lawyer" to compete with the power and prestige of the major law firms, and that Wilmington may become part of a new trend in municipal government whereby communities are issuing Requests for Proposals, or RFP's, and putting out to bid the legal work of the local government to the most competent firm, bidding the most affordable price.

"I would like to look at cuts throughout the whole system at next week's town meeting," said Selectman Chester Bruce. "Any alternative proposal which would save us on those high legal fees is certainly worth looking at."

Specifically, some cities and towns have retained large firms with diverse legal staffs, prepared for the vast array of cases confronting local governments today. Contracts stipulate costs, and some towns have experienced savings and enhanced legal representation.

Next week, voters will face some painful decisions at town meeting. Considering alternatives in the legal budget may be a worthwhile option.

Keep all cuts outside of the classroom:

Teachers are getting a bum rap, as usual. It's become almost fashionable to lay them off first, and this attitude is indicative of the national education crisis, resting on a foundation of Americans oblivious to how vital a quality public school system is to the nation.

It should be argued that not one non-essential position should be left funded in the town budget before the ax falls on teachers needed in the classrooms.

One such non-essential position is that of Recreation Director, held for many years by a most competent individual who has cared deeply for the community and his official duties.

But the budget debate must be free of personalities, and it can easily be argued that the coordination of local recreational activities does not rank with teaching reading, writing, and arithmetic.

Abolishing the recreation department, both director and support staff, would provide the funds to save teaching jobs. The director makes $908.31 weekly, the clerk $454.76.

It all comes down to priorities, however painful prioritizing might be.

Teaching kids and preparing them for the future is also more important than a library director. This has always been a purely administrative position, and it would be difficult to argue that overall policy for the library, the chief responsibility of the director, could not be assumed by the public high school librarian. To take this a step further, why are these two libraries separate? Wilmington High is just a stones throw away, and in the daytime the Memorial Library is hardly a crowd scene, with room to accommodate greater student activity. Cut the library director's position, save $908.00 per week, retain teachers now on the chopping block, and give Mrs. Shea at the high school a bigger office and a lot more volumes at the town library.

The kids can meet her there for library science class and they'll be better off for the exercise along the way.

Paul Duggan retires in early 1992, which is half way through the upcoming fiscal year. His salary, $70,000, is appropriate for years of superior service.

His successor will probably come cheap. Go to U-Lowell or Merrimack, grab some poor grad student from the environmental management program and give them the job at 30K. The savings at water/sewer will allow a teacher to come back to the classroom mid-year.

Kiss the planning director goodbye. Done a great job, we hardly got-to-know-ya, but our kids at the Wildwood, the Woburn Street, the Shawsheen, the North, the West and High School take first place here in Wilmington. We're going to replace you with a committee of retired citizens (of which we have plenty) with expertise in this area.

Your salary of $38,989 will save more of our educators. See ya when the good times return.

Yes, these ideas are tough, maybe hardhitting. But it's amazing to comprehend the deaf ear that the public has turned on the public education cuts now on the table. Bashing teachers has always been easy. We've all heard the comments, emanating from ignorance on the profession, that "teachers have the summers off, they've got it easy", etc., etc.

And yet, few people would volunteer to spend a day in the classroom, which four walls contain more social and developmental problems than have ever existed, directly challenging teachers.

"There's a skills and knowledge gap in America", said Secretary of Education Lamar Alexander this week.

Wilmington can't fill that gap with massive education layoffs.

ConCom concerned with wetlands filling

by Arlene Surprenant
A plan to fill 4,184 square feet of bordering vegetated wetlands and create 4,140 square feet of replication was placed on hold until a Wednesday night meeting of the Wilmington Conservation Commission to allow the board to obtain further information. The site for the proposed work is on Woburn Street near Route 62.

In a memo to her board, Conservation Administrator Eileen Chabot said the applicant, Robert Scarano of Duodena Realty Trust, maintains that the filling is needed to construct a slope for proposed septic systems on two house lots. Chabot said, during several site visits, she noticed the construction is within Zone Two of the Brown's Crossing Wellfield and the water from the lots will discharge to a stream traveling towards the wellfield. She also stated, while it was not identified in the applicant's Notice of Intent, it appears the area may be bordering land subject to flooding. Chabot told commissioners the town engineer has been asked to review drainage calculations and she suggested the board not close the hearing until that review is forthcoming. In addition, Chabot recommended Scarano try to minimize the wetlands filling as much as possible.

The property has a long history. In 1975, a Notice of Intent was filed by Drinkwater Realty Trust to construct nine homes on 6.9 acres of land. The commission at that time denied the project because of the amount of wetlands to be filled and significant impacts on the area. In 1978, another Notice of Intent was filed to construct six homes on site. This too was denied because of the threat to the groundwater supply and possible pollution to the wellfield. The water and sewer commission wrote a letter then citing potential contamination.

At their last meeting in May, commissioners agreed with neighbors from Hathaway Road and Marie Drive that the area is wet and the proposal could negatively impact the neighborhood. Abutters noted, too, there had been flooding problems in the past.

The proposal will be brought up again tonight at a continued public hearing at 8:30 p.m.

Teachers complete Project Wild

by Arlene Surprenant
Twelve teachers completed a six hour long workshop in Aquatic Project Wild May 29 and received their certificate of accomplishment from project leader Eileen Chabot, Wilmington's Conservation Administrator. This was the second such workshop held in the local school system.

Project Wild is a large-scale curriculum supplement focusing on wildlife concepts. The workshop taught teachers how to incorporate aquatic wildlife activities into their curriculums for the benefit of their students. The teachers ranged from elementary to the high school level.

Chabot told the Town Crier she is making herself available to all Wilmington teachers to lead educational activities near local streams and brooks and to visit classrooms to talk about water quality and wetlands. Teachers wishing to take advantage of her offer are invited to contact Chabot at her office in Town Hall. A similar teacher's workshop is being planned for next year.

Guest spot

Time never moves backward, but it is possible to keep up with time. Former school committeeman Dick Keane of Chestnut Street, Wilmington is a member of the Alumni Band of Wilmington High School. On Friday night, he played the trumpet in the Wilmington High School Band and the school convocation.

Changes suggested for subdivision plan

by Arlene Surprenant
Proponents of a new three-lot subdivision off West Street by Suncrest Avenue paid a visit to the Wilmington Planning Board Tuesday to get their input on the preliminary plan.

Property owner Charles Jannone and his brother-in-law Paul Finocchietto, an engineer with PJF and Associates in Medford, told the board they plan to extend Meadowlane Road and put in a cul de sac and use that for access to the two lots on which they will be building. Current access is through a right of way that connects to West Street. The parcel is in an R20 zone. The men said they are following an existing 1947 subdivision plan.

The board made several suggestions. Carole Hamilton recommended straightening out a cul de sac on adjacent property and making it an easement. New member Eric Judson suggested moving the proposed cul de sac to the middle of lots B and C to make the lots more equal in size. Bill Hooper said the men should talk to water and sewer commissioners about the size of water pipes in the area.

Warning issued on vicious dog

by Arlene Surprenant
A Floradale Avenue resident was given one more chance to contain an aggressive dog before further action is taken by the Wilmington Board of Health.

At their meeting Monday night, board members warned Susan Piro, whose husband owns the German Shepherd in question, to take stronger steps to prevent their dog from escaping and "terrorizing" the neighborhood. Chairman Jim Ficociello warned one more such incident and Winston would have to be removed from town or euthanized.

Winston already wears an orange collar denoting he is a vicious animal. He has reportedly gotten loose twice before. Last month, Winston and the other two dogs owned by the Piro's dug under an electric wire surrounding the yard and made their escape. Piro said she was at work and her husband was away at the time.

Piro told members the dogs are not only pets but provide protection during her husband's business trips. She said measures have already been taken to control the situation.

Dog Officer Ellen Davis as well as the board recommended Winston be kept in the house or penned outside with padlocked chains. Ficociello pointed out there is a safety issue involved and the next incident could result in a "tragedy." The Piro's have already been fined $30 by Davis.

In a related matter, a vicious dog owned by Mr. Greenberg of Woburn Street has been removed to Plymouth, New Hampshire. The dog had reportedly bitten its owner several times causing Mr. Greenberg to be hospitalized. Greenberg's son told the board the dog was "only a threat to my father" and praised Davis' "display of authority" and handling of a recent biting incident and the dog itself.

"She did a very good job. I appreciate her being out there," Greenberg said.

Thursday while assigned to traffic control Officer Joe Harris arrested two men in separate incidents. At 11:45 a.m., he arrested David Montecalvo, 30 of Friday night four people were arrested by Officers Richter and Desmond after Richter discovered a break at a construction trailer on Earls Row, owned by builder Paul Butt. Robert P. Seaburg, 23 and Sharon Seaburg, 20, both of Somerville along with Christopher Kelly, 26 and Doris Kelly, 23, both of Malden were all charged with breaking and entering in the night time with intent to commit a felony. Robert Seaburg was additionally charged with possession of burglarious tools, and later an outstanding warrant. The Kellys and Sharon Seaburg were bailed for Monday at Woburn Court. Robert Seaburg was held in the lockup for the weekend in lieu of bail.

Wilmington senior topics

June whist

The first whist of June will be held in the function room of the senior citizen center. It will begin at 1 p.m. If you have played whist before and do not have anyone to play with now, join the players at the center. It will give you a chance to meet some nice seniors with the same interests you have. The monthly donation from the Kiwanis Club is used toward the prizes for the winners of the games.

Therapeutic social July 1

Friday, June 21 the Council on Aging will have its final therapeutic social for fiscal year 90-91. FY 19-92 begins July 1. This final social will be a buffet luncheon of potato, macaroni and tossed salads, chicken, tuna and ham sandwiches, pickles and olives, banana and date nut bread, assorted cupcakes and coffee. As this is the last therapeutic social of this year and 1991 is our fifth anniversary of the opening of the Buzzell Senior Center, to join in our celebration we will be inviting the dignitaries of the town. And as many of our benefactors as can be contacted by the Council members, to join us as our guests. A $1.00 non-refundable deposit will be required when you sign up. We will begin signing up for this social on Thursday morning, June 6 beginning at 9:30.

Mr. Brown from MBTA

June 25, Mr. Brown from the MBTA will be at the senior citizen center to distribute MBTA photo senior citizen discount cards. It is necessary to be 65 years or older to obtain one of these cards. Proof of age must be presented before a card will be issued. Proof of age could be a drivers license, birth certificate or senior citizen I.D. card. A disabled person under the age of 65 will have to have with them a letter signed by a representative of the MBTA stating that you are eligible to receive a card. Only once a year we are able to receive a card at our senior center. If you miss this opportunity, you will have to wait or go to Boston to get one.

Help needed

We have a senior who lives with her son and his wife. It is not possible for them to be with her all the time. They are, therefore looking for a senior who can stay with the senior when they cannot be with her. You would be called when needed. The senior is able to take care of herself. All that will be required of you is to be with her during the day and if necessary throughout the night. The pay is $5.00 an hour. If interested call the center for more information.

Notify SS if retiring

If you are planning to retire this year you should call the Social Security Office in Lowell at least three months before. This will allow you to receive your benefit checks on time when you retire. If you have all the information ready when you call for an appointment it will speed up the process for you. You will need information and documents about you and your spouse and work history. Birth certificates, proof of military service, W-2 forms or self employment to start you application. All documents must be the originals. Call toll free 1-800-2345 SSA or 1-800-234-5772.

Medicare A&B

At the same time you should be applying for Medicare A&B at the same office. Remember Medicare pays only 80 percent of the approved cost of your medical treatment. You should have a supplement insurance to cover the remaining 20 percent of the bill or you could be faced with a very large bill to pay. When you apply for your Social Security benefits and Medicare you should also contact the supplement policy from the insurance company you prefer. It could be AARP, Prudential, or Blue Cross Medex. The earlier you apply you will have everything in order when you retire.

Dog needs a good home

We received a call from a senior who has a small dog 12 years old she would like to give to a senior who may enjoy its company. She is moving to Florida and cannot take it with her. Call the center if interested.

Phillies roar past Expos, 16-10

Senior Softball Phillies 16 Expos 10

The Phillies were much improved from their 22-17 loss to the Expos, the last time these two teams met. Adrienne Fay, with her 15 strikeouts, led the Phillies to a 16-10 victory.

Irma Staffier, Denise Langone and Michelle Ciaramaglia led the offense for the Phillies, while Nancy Pote secured the defense with some great catching. Leanne Tarentino led the hitting for the Expos.

Braves 16 Padres 15

The Braves defense came up big Tuesday by shutting out the Padres twice with the bases loaded. Kristi Lyman pitched four solid innings while striking out six before wearing down in the fifth. Jill Branley came in for relief and pitched well to get the victory.

The Braves' offense was led by Kelley O'Donnell, Jamie Rutledge, Kerri Scifo, Kim Brackett. Big defensive plays were turned in by Jacqui Holloway with a diving tag and Mary Armata. The Padres had a late rally to tie the game, but the Braves came up with one in the seventh to win.

Lori Southmayd played well defensively for the Padres. The Padres hitting attack was led by Jamie Forgett.

Major League Red Sox 2 Indians 1

Although the game was called in the sixth inning due to a downpour, the Red Sox and Indians managed to do it all. Matt Roux, the Indians' rookie pitcher, did a masterful job of holding the Red Sox to two runs and recording eight strikeouts.

Jamie Campbell knocked in the Red Sox runs and that was enough, as Chris DiJulia held the Indians to one run. Mike McDonald had the key hit for the Indians, a triple to drive in the run.

play for the Red Sox by throwing out a runner at third. Jamie Hodder, playing thirdbase, made a fine catch and a good tag. Billy Harrison had two hits for the Indians and did a fine relief job for two innings, giving up no runs and striking out two batters.

Red Sox 7 Orioles 3

Whenever the Orioles and Red Sox meet there is always excitement, and this game was no exception. The strong pitching of John Paul Civetti, Keith MacLaren and Sean Kerrigan could not contain the Red Sox bats.

David Santini had two doubles, Phil Bates a triple, Chris DiJulia a double and Mike Genetti a double. Jason Giangregorio began the game for the Sox, but was relieved in the third by Chris DiJulia who went the distance.

Mike Gennetti made a fantastic catch at third to prevent the Orioles from breaking the game open.

On the Orioles side, Billy Covino was like a vacuum cleaner at second base, making every play that came his way. His counterpart on the Red Sox, Mike Carroll, made some key plays, as did Phil Bates in centerfield.

Minor League

Dodgers 17 Phillies 15

Adam Clancy's hitting and David Savoy's key plays in the field led the Dodgers to victory. Alex Athanassia, Joe Casey and Jack Alasco each had two hits for the Phillies.

Giants 12 Cards 9

The Giants defeated the Cardinals behind the hitting of Peter Bamberg and Shawn Fay. Greg Anderson chipped in with a homerun late in the game. John Coughlin was a standout defensively.

The Cardinals' attack was led by the all-around solid play of Doug Burns and the heavy hitting of Bill Konaxis and Sean Farrell who hit a long homerun.

Mets 11 Cards 6

The Mets defeated the Cardinals behind the all-around solid play of pitcher Ken Branley and Carl Giangregorio. The Mets' offense was paced by the homerun power of Larry Mitza.

The Cards were led offensively by Brian Long and defensively by Mike Warford and Ken Chin who made the play of the game at at secondbase.

Farm League

Expos 15 Mariners 14

The opening game for both teams turned out to be a most exciting one. The Mariners jumped out to an early 10-2 lead paced by Eric Farrell, Dennis Sullivan and Mike Corcoran.

But the Expos stormed back with rallies in the bottom of the fourth and fifth innings. Hitting stars were Mike O'Connor, Chris Catena, Jason Youngclaus and Nick Tranghese.

Expos 12 Cubs 8

Hitting stars for Expos were Richard Pallizzolo, John O'Neil, Jeff Coughlin, Scott Neville and Kevin Forgett.

Blue Jays 12 Padres 4

Eric Sweizinsky blasted a double and a triple to lead the Blue Jays past the Padres in a well played defensive game. Doug Marsobian, David Silva and Darren Arciero helped the Blue Jays cause with perfect days at the plate.

The Padres' attack was led by Ryan Moroney, Dan Fogg and Matt Gillis.

Expos 13 Astros 8

Astros hitters Danny Tello had two hits, including a homerun. Blake Genetti had two hits and a homerun and Paul Casley had three hits.

Hitting stars for the Expos were Mike O'Connor with four hits, including two homers. Joe Babineau, David Trueria and David Hanley.

Blue Jays 18 Rangers 12

Martin DeAngelo hammered a homerun and two triples to help the Blue Jays rally past the Rangers. David Silva, Darren Arciero, Jason Osborne and Brian Velardo each had four hits for the Jays.

The Rangers made several good defensive plays and were paced on offense by Bobby French, Jimmy Fennelly and Pat Cucznotta who each had three hits. Joe Silva was two for two with a triple.

Padres 24 Astros 12

The Padres had a big second inning, with Michelle Lemos, Kevin Forgett and Ryan O'Donnell providing the power.

The contest against the Medford Mustangs scheduled for Friday May 31 was postponed due to rain.

On Monday night the Reds slammed the Melrose Rams, 9-1 in a rain shortened game at Alumni Field. Chris Curley hurled four innings, allowing only three singles, while Tim Beaton (Tewksbury) pitched the fifth frame before the rains stopped the contest.

Jim Adamson (2-3) with three RBIs paced the Reds' 13 hit attack off two Ram hurlers. Ross Yanco, Mike Lightbody and Bradd Levitan chipped in with a pair of hits each as the Reds jumped out to a commanding 9-0 lead after three innings.

Charlie's Herbie Mason made it 2-1 with a sacrifice fly and they got another in the sixth.

Walsh combo sparks Bentley track

Mike and Suzy Walsh compete in different events and went to different high schools, but the brother and sister from Wilmington have at least one thing in common.

As members of the Bentley College varsity track teams, they both like to break school records.

During the recently completed year, each turned in record-breaking performances in three events.

Mike, a 6' 3/12", 230 pound sophomore, set outdoor school records in the discus (156'3") and the javelin (192'0"), with the latter mark since broken by teammate Marc Bruneau. Indoors, the Malden Catholic High School alumnus threw the shot put a Bentley record 45' 6 1/2".

Suzy, nine inches and more than 100 pounds smaller than Mike, made her presence felt during her freshman year. At the New England Championships earlier this month, she ran the 800 meters in 2:17.81, shaving nearly three quarters of a second off Kathy Fitzgibbons' four year old record. The Wilmington High School graduate was also a part of record setting 1600 meter relay teams both indoors and outdoors.

Both Mike and Suzy placed in championship meets this spring. Mike, who won the discus at the 1990 ECAC Division II Championships, was third in the event at the Eastern Intercollegiate Athletic Association Championships, a meet dominated by Division I schools. He bypassed the ECAC Championships this year to participate in the ICAAAA Championships in Harrisonburg, Va. earlier this month.

Suzy did compete in the ECAC Championships and finished fourth in the 800 meters. She also ran a leg on the Falcons' 400 meter relay team that placed sixth in the meet.

Last fall she was selected as the MVP of the women's cross country team after finishing first or second in each of the team's meets.

Mike, a management major, and Suzy, who is majoring in liberal arts, are the children of Francis and Mary Walsh of Kilmarnock Street, Wilmington.

There is still one more Walsh child at home, 14-year-old Steven. If he follows in the footsteps of his brother and sister, you can bet he'll be on the recruiting list of Bentley coach Barry Harwick in a couple of years.

Pop Warner signup day

The Wilmington Pop Warner Board of Directors and coaches cordially invites all interested children ages seven through 13 (8/1/84-7/31/84) to attend the annual signup day.

The cost for the program will be as follows: Fifty dollars, first family member; $25, each additional family member; $100 cap per family; $25 refundable service fee in lieu of hours volunteered will also be charged per family.

Towel orders are also due in on this day and the league will be accepting orders at the same time as registration.

The board would also like to inform you that the season's second dance is June 14, Friday night at the Wildwood School for the elementary age players and at the North Intermediate School for those of junior high school age.

The tournament will be held Saturday, June 29 and Sunday, June 30 at the Reading Memorial High School fieldhouse in Reading.

All teams of the appropriate levels are eligible to participate and are invited to submit applications. Entry fee will be $75. For any participant entering one team in each division, the fee will be $125. All teams will be guaranteed at least two games in the double elimination format.

For more information and/or to have an entry form sent for any youth team, please call Austin Prep varsity basketball coach Mike Wendt at (508) 658-2829.

Andy Armata

Armata earns select honors

The Massachusetts Youth Soccer Association's Olympic Development Program has selected local soccer player Andrew Armata for the State Select Team Program.

The Olympic Development Program is part of a national program whose primary purpose is to identify and train the most promising youth soccer players.

Ultimately, the top players have the opportunity to become members of the U.S. national and Olympic teams. Players selected for the State Select Team Program also have an opportunity to be identified as members of Eastern Region Teams.

Members of the Eastern Region teams participate in the competitions against other regions and travel abroad to compete against international teams.

Andrew is currently a member of the Wilmington Youth Soccer Association's BU-14 travel team coached by Pat King. He is also a member of the Spirit of '77 team coached by Mike McGonagle of Burlington. This team is part of the Spirit of Massachusetts Soccer Club.

Andrew's soccer career started at a young age when he began participating in the WYSA in-town and travel programs. This experience afforded him the opportunity to participate in the Olympic Development Program district team and the Spirit of Massachusetts Soccer Club.

Tewksbury soccer tryouts

The Tewksbury Youth Soccer Fall Developmental Program will be in operation again this year.

This program consists of teams in the under 12 and under 14 age group for both boys and girls.

Tryouts will be held on the travel team fields at the Sal Frasca Memorial Soccer Complex according to the following schedule: Girls Under 12 (players must have been born after August 21, 1979) Saturday June 8, and Saturday June 15 at 1:30 p.m.

Girls Under 14 (players must have been born after August 31, 1977) Saturday June 8 and Saturday June 15 at 8 p.m.

Boys Under 12 (players born after August 31, 1979) Sunday, June 9 and Sunday June 16 at 6 p.m.
Boys Under 14 (players born after August 31, 1977) Sunday, June 9 and Sunday June 16 at 2:30 p.m.

Please note: there has been a change in age requirements. Fall soccer fee is $30.

It is possible to field more than one team per age division. Last fall the program had two boys under 12 teams.

The annual general meeting will be held Wednesday, June 12 at 7:30 p.m. at the library of the Tewksbury Junior High School. The agenda consists of the election of officers for 1991-92 and the accepting of applications for coaching positions for next year.

Boys' Under 10 III

After failing to gain a victory in the first two games, the boys hosted a skilled Concord team.

Finally the boys hard work resulted a win. Goals were scored by Kyle Murphy, William Kent, Kevin Forgett (three), Mark Rappolli, David Silva and Dan Keating, in an 8-2 victory.

Both Eric Jepson and Jeff Coughlin made a number of great saves in goal, as well as two assists while on the field. Also, Evan O'Neil set up a couple of goals with key assists.

Fresh off a victory over Concord, the boys hosted a spirited Waltham squad. Waltham started off like gangbusters, scoring three goals in the first 10 minutes of the game. But the Wilmington boys didn't get down on themselves. They picked up their intensity and quickly, Eric Jepson and Kevin Forgett scored, bringing them back into the game. But, Waltham scored again to bring the score at intermission to 4-2 for the visitors.

However, the rest of the game belonged to Wilmington. With second half goals by Kyle Murphy, Kevin Forgett, Evan O'Neil and David Silva, the locals completely overpowered the opponents to gain a very impressive come from behind 6-4 victory.

Paul Casely, Jeff Coughlin and Mark Rappolli had key assists, while David Silva and Eric Jepson were immense as the netminders.

The next game was against Medford. The first half was fairly even, however, a Medford player slammed the ball into the net to take a 1-0 lead at halftime. The Medford players simply overpowered the local squad and cruised to a victory.

The locals then hosted an undefeated Wakefield team the following week. Wakefield scored first with a perfectly placed shot into the corner of the net. A few minutes later, Kevin Forgett found the upper corner of the net to tie the score.

The score stayed tied until the last minute of the first half when Wakefield took a 2-1 halftime lead.

The second half was also evenly played, but a Wakefield player was able to capitalize on a breakaway to clinch a 3-1 victory.

Despite the loss, the boys made a valiant effort in this game. Willie Kent and Kyle Murphy excelled on both offense and defense. David Silva and Jeff Coughlin had superior games on the field and in goal. Paul Casely was outstanding in every phase of the game.

Boys under 12 I Team

The Wilmington Boys' Under 12 I team split its' last five games, as they played some of the tougher teams in Division II of the Middlesex Travel League.

The Under-12's began with a 7-0 blowout of Everett with goals by Billy Covino, Scott Fullerton, Tom Casella, Chris Kilburn, Jay Isberg and two by Mark DiGiovanni.

The game was highlighted by a memorable play by Scott Swieczynski, who guarded an empty Wilmington goal, knocked away a point blank Everett shot and saved the shutout for keepers Joe Bamberg and Adam Vogel.

However, this offensive explosion was tempered by a 1-0 loss to a tough Melrose defensive squad the next week.

Wilmington then followed this loss with a 1-1 tie with Lowell on a goal with less than 10 minutes left in the match.

The only goal was triggered by a Dennis Ingram pass to Billy Covino on the right wing. Covino's shot slipped past the Lowell keeper and was pushed in the goal by Dan Bennett.

Later Wilmington suffered a tough 2-1 loss to first place Woburn.

The Under 12's had a one goal lead at the end of the first half, but the defense fell apart for a crucial few minutes at the beginning of the second half, allowing Woburn to score its' two goals.

Wilmington then rebounded with a 2-1 victory over Winchester. Covino scored the first goal on a penalty kick, while Dennis Ingram put away the game winner on some fine dribbling and key assists by Dave Ward and Nick Athanassiou.

Throughout all the games, the defense has been superb, with excellent hustle by keepers Vogel and Bamberg, and backs Ward, Isberg, Doug Bonarrigo, Tom Heigham and Alex Bromley.

Mosquitos can be deadly

by Bill Conlon
Mosquitos are more than simply a summertime annoyance.

Some can kill. Yes, they do. Mosquitos carry some of the most notorious diseases in the world. In building the Panama Canal, yellow fever spread by mosquitoes clobbered the work crews. And yellow fever is one of many bugs spread by the bugs.

Now we have a nasty disease on the upswing, right here. Eastern Equine Encephalitis isn't new, it isn't unusual, and it can't be cured.

Three people contracted EEE in the Bay State last year: One died of it, another recovered fully, and the third is still suffering from the effects. That's what you call a scary batting average!

But if you consider the number of mosquito bites last year that didn't result in EEE, you can see that the mosquitoes have a poor batting average as well. Thank goodness.

The incidence of Eastern Equine Encephalitis shows up in cycles of roughly eight to ten years, when it is prevalent for two or three years, according to Dave Scott of Tewksbury, who is the Superintendent of the Central Massachusetts Mosquito Control Project (CMMCP). So, every eight-to-ten years, he said, EEE becomes a problem for a two or three year period. The first year of the current up-cycle was 1990, with three cases. This year should be the worst, tapering off in 1992.

Scott said EEE showed up during the 1937 to 1938 period, again in 1955 and 1956, again from 1973 to 1975, again from 1982 to 1984, and here we are.

The disease, he said, is primarily a disease of birds, not humans and not horses, as the name suggests. The Culiseta Melanura mosquito is the problem, since it circulates the disease among birds in the swamps where it dwells. The birds migrate, spreading the range of the disease. The C. Melanura does not feed on humans, so it isn't a problem to us.

But other mosquitoes also feed on birds, he said, and those mosquitoes may be the ones that bite us, acting as a "bridge" vector for the EEE virus. So, birds get Eastern Equine Encephalitis from the C. Melanura, and the birds spread it to us through the dozens of other mosquitoes that enjoy warm dinners.

Scott said there CMMCP has set up monitoring stations in Billerica and Tewksbury, where types and numbers of mosquitoes are checked with "light traps" that attract the nasty little things. However, Scott added, some mosquito species are not attracted to light, so a volunteer must perform a "sleeve" test.

That means a volunteer rolls up a sleeve, holds out a bare arm, then waits a few minutes and counts the numbers and types. All this time I thought that kind of "mosquito test" was a Vietnam joke for hazing the new guys in the jungle...

The disease is commonly more prevalent in south coastal areas of Massachusetts, he said, but spreads to inland areas as well. Scott said a Department of Public Health press release last week lists Wilmington, Billerica and Reading as possible risk areas. Simple prudence means Tewksbury and other Merrimack Valley towns should pay attention.

Scott added that most backyard bug zappers don't really attract any mosquitoes, and the "ZAP" you hear is a moth or beetle going on to its reward. Since some of those bugs kill mosquitoes, the bug zapper may be counterproductive. Install a bat house for better results.

Since EEE is a virus, it can't be treated with an anti-bacterial agent, and therefore there is no cure for EEE, according to information by Tewksbury Public Health Director Tom Carbone.

Symptoms of Eastern Equine Encephalitis, Carbone said, include a high fever (103 to 106°F), lack of energy, and a stiff neck, with the symptoms showing up two to ten days after the bite is delivered. The biggest problem is swelling of the brain and spinal cord (encephalitis) and that can be fatal. Treatment for EEE, Carbone said, is to keep the patient comfortable, try to ease the fever, and let the professionals try to relieve the pressure on the brain.

As for your best bet to avoid the disease, follow all the normal anti-mosquito measures, including long sleeves, long pants, and the wearing of insect repellents, such as DEET.

My preference for evenings on the pond is a jacket and heavy pants, my "mosquito armor," along with heavy wool socks. That cuts down on skin areas that need repellent. A coating of Muskol® repellent, 100 percent DEET, on head and arms completes the package, along with a canvas hat to protect my scalp. And I enjoy fishing after sunset, when the mosquitoes are thick enough to lift me out of the boat, but I never have a problem with 'em.

The Busybody League says that DEET might be hazardous to your health, especially if it gets in your mouth. Maybe so, but if anybody tries to outlaw DEET, I'm buying a 55-gallon drum of Muskol first.

TOWN CRIER, JUNE 5, 1991.....13

Also, do what you can to prevent mosquitoes from breeding, since the nasties that spread the disease from birds to humans will happily breed in standing water. Empty all water from old tires, buckets, and bottles. Mosquitos can go from egg to adult in just a few days, so even that box of returnable bottles sitting on your porch can be a mosquito version of a honeymoon hideout. Empty 'em.

Dave Scott said that July, August and parts of September are worst for Eastern Equine Encephalitis, so we have a bit of lead time. Clean out the breeding places, lay out the mosquito armor and stock up on the best repellent you can find, and we should get through the latest cycle of mosquito disease just fine.

The odds are pretty good that you won't get the disease, but then the odds of survival aren't very good if you do.

So be careful.

The Greater Lowell Fly Fishers will hold their 9th annual two-day benefit fishing derby on the Merrimack River, on June 22 and 23, to benefit Lowell's House of Hope and the Merrimack River Watershed Council. Entry fee is $15 per, and this year the GLFF asks that you make your checks payable directly to either House of Hope or MRWC. Nice touch. An all-night signup will be held starting 5 p.m. Friday at the Old Bathhouse on the Pawtucket Boulevard (Route 113), until the kickoff at 7 a.m. Saturday. Fishing will run non-stop until 3 p.m. on Sunday. Ten cash prizes will go out for the biggest largemouth, smallmouth and carp, with a top prize of $500 in each species. And to frost the cake, the weekend of June 22-23 is a free fishing weekend in the state so you can fish without a license!

SWEAT will hold their annual River Day on the Shawsheen River, on June 9, starting at 1 p.m. Events will include canoe races, fishing derbies, horseshoes and barbeque. The event will be at Fosters Park in Tewksbury, at the end of Charlotte Street off Shawsheen. Come meet the SWEAT folks and have some fun on the river.

Tewksbury Rod & Gun plans a 3-D archery shoot on June 16, at their Chandler Street digs. Entries from 7 to 11 a.m. TR&G also has the annual Pig Roast - Flea Market on the slate for June 22.

I got this notice in the mail, but I doubt I'll make the contest:

August 9, 10 and 11 will see the first annual Boston Whaler Dartmouth Sea Derby, offering a total of $45,000 in fish prizes and door prizes. Entry fee is $50 per, half that for kids 12 and under, with prizes in four classes of fish: shark, groundfish, mackerel and striped bass. Signups at the waterfront, in Dartmouth, Nova Scotia, Canada.

Met Life will hold a Pond Life Nature Walk on July 13 at Ames Pond, Tewksbury. No charge, and details coming later.

KINDER TREATMENT

Just when our hair is most vulnerable, many of us subject it to its worst treatment. Hair is weakest when it is wet. Yet, it is precisely upon emerging from the shower when we subject our wet head to a vigorous rub of the towel and the heat of a blow dryer. These actions are more likely to break hair strands than more gentle care. A kinder approach calls for patting hair dry with a towel, followed by fluffing hair with the fingers in an effort to encourage air-drying. If blow drying is necessary, only allow the heat to dry hair to the point of slight dampness. Never over dry hair. Bear in mind that the 1,500 watts employed by many blow dryers is enough drying energy to run an electric toaster. Take care, not to toast hair with this powerful device.

If you notice your hair is dry and brittle, let us recommend the best solution for you. Call us today at SHAWSHEEN HAIR SALON, 161 Shawsheen Ave., Rt. 129, Wilmington, (508) 658-9475. Hours: open six days and nights of the week, closed Sunday. Let us introduce you to Systems Biolage for natural and therapeutic hair care solutions by Matrix.

Congratulations. Pam and Steve on the birth of your beautiful daughter Ashleigh, May 25, 1991; six pounds, 10 ounces, 20".

HINT: Never hold a blow dryer closer than six inches from the hair.

Photo Memorabilia Dennis Brearley has a huge collection

By DOUGLAS WOOD-BOYLE

Zeroing in on history has been a productive and successful project for photographer and photo collector Dennis Brearley since the first time he saved a negative from a dump truck.

That occurred when the former Boston Record American/Sunday Advertiser decided that they needed to clean their photography morgue at the former 5 Winthrop Square, Boston location.

Brearley saw workman taking old glass negatives out of the Winthrop Square building in five gallon drums and throwing them into a dump truck.

He quickly gained permission to save what negatives he could and thus started one of the most extensive photo collections of sports and historic events in existence.

"I started pulling them out of the truck and ruined a good suit in the process," Brearley recalled.

Soon word spread around town that he was saving negatives and other photographers started to offer Brearley their collections.

When the Record American took over the former Boston Herald Traveller, the same cleaning process was about to take place.

This time Brearley had more time to prepare his salvage operation.

"I went into the publisher and said 'I have problem with this. This is the history of the state'," Brearley said.

He was given permission to take whatever he wanted from the files but was told that the rest would be thrown out.

Among the negatives he was able to save were such pictures as the German zeppelin Hindenburg's historic flight over Boston on May 6, 1937. The Customs House clock, in the foreground shows the time as 11:40 a.m. The airship exploded in Lakehurst, New Jersey almost eight hours later.

The flight was the first and last time that the Swastika was allowed to fly over this country. Others were the State House before the wings were added on and Scollay Square at the turn of the century.

In his personal museum at his Reading office, Brearley has the original Scollay Square sign from the Boston Elevated (now MBTA) station.

The collection mirrors New England life back as far as 1886.

His collection, of which copies are for sale in his Faneuil Hall Marketplace shop, run by his wife Susan, also includes his own shot of the February 7, 1968 Blinstrub's nightclub fire.

Brearley described the circumstances of that shot. He noted that it was one of the few times he had ever followed a fire engine.

Special pediatric practice at Regional Health Center

As one of four pediatricians in practice at the Regional Health Center in Wilmington, Sarah Andrews, M.D. enjoys working in an environment that is unrushed and pleasant, yet highly efficient and up to date. Dr. Andrews, along with her colleagues, David Salomon, M.D., Yvette Yatchmink, M.D., and Margery Schonfeld, M.D. provides primary care to infants, children and teenagers up to 18 years of age.

Each physician sees his or her own patients while remaining familiar with the others in the practice. This allows for a continuity of care, something that puts even the more apprehensive child at ease. "The physicians in the practice are all young, recently trained, and carry the same philosophies," said Dr. Andrews.

"We encourage continuity of care by seeing our own patients whenever possible," said Dr. Salomon, who has been practicing pediatrics at the Regional Health Center for nine years. They also encourage highly attentive and personalized care by limiting the number of appointments scheduled each day. This allows for the physicians to spend more time with each patient.

"We make sure we have time to listen to what mothers and fathers have to say," Dr. Andrews added. "And patients, too, as soon as they are able to talk."

To reaffirm at home what is discussed during office visits, patients and parents are given a variety of published materials. "We provide handouts on safety, injury prevention, and common illness," Dr. Andrews said. "Health and safety begin at home."

This belief reflects the group's shared philosophies on pediatric care. The physicians meet on a regular basis to discuss these philosophies, as well as individual patients and current topics in the field.

"We stay abreast of all the new developments and changes in pediatrics," Dr. Salomon noted. For him, that has also meant keeping current on learning disabilities and other problems children have related to school.

"And Dr. Yatchmink is pursuing a fellowship in developmental pediatrics at the University of Massachusetts in Worcester. She has a special interest in infant and toddler development; Dr. Schonfeld has a special interest in adolescent gynecology."

Dr. Andrews adds, "The physicians keep current on all the changes in pediatrics. It's very up to date here."

Beverly Hospital Birth

MR. and MRS. GEOFFREY ROGERS (Geraldine Surette) of Haverhill announce the birth of their son, William Chadwick, on May 8, 1991. Grandparent honors are extended to Beverly Surette of North Reading, Richard Surette of Bradford, New Hampshire and William and Ruthanne Rogers of Ipswich. Great grandparents are Annie Hatch of Stoneham and Harry and Nan Chadwick of Potter Place, New Hampshire.

Out-of-State birth

MR. and MRS. GREIG PALMUNEN (Laureen Shirkoff) of Kingsland, Georgia announce the birth of their daughter, Kimberly Anne, on May 20, 1991. Grandparent honors are extended to Mrs. Nathalie Palmunen and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Shirkoff, all of Reading.

The YOU CAN CANOE! DAY agenda will include topics on how to choose a canoe, packing for canoe camping, footwear for the outdoors and tips on car topping your canoe. American Rivers will have a table set up with information about river conservation.

Come catch the canoeing spirit by planning to attend this special one-time event.

For further information about YOU CAN CANOE! DAY, contact Mary Anne Machis of REI at (617) 944-5103 or stop in the store at 279 Salem St., Reading.

"You Can Canoe" Day June 8 at Horn Pond

Find out about canoeing and how people can help protect our nation's rivers at the upcoming REI sponsored YOU CAN CANOE! DAY set for June 8 at Horn Pond in Woburn from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. From an interested water sport newcomer to canoe enthusiast, there promises to be something for everyone at this free, hands-on event.

More than 20 different canoe models will be available for demonstrations and test drives for anyone who wishes to try out a canoe. Presented by Recreational Equipment Incorporated (REI), Mad River Canoe, American Rivers, Chevy Trucks, The North Face and Timberland, this on-the-water clinic is an excellent opportunity to experience canoes designed for general recreation, cruising, whitewater and fishing.

At YOU CAN CANOE! DAY, persons will feel the difference in canoe handling characteristics and learn about the high tech materials and designs that comprise today's scientifically advanced canoes. Anyone who has paddled an old aluminum or fiberglass canoe will certainly appreciate the benefits of today's much lighter, more stable, quieter and tougher canoes.

For most people, flat water and smaller streams are where canoeing has its greatest appeal. Almost everyone has convenient access to waterways. Even in large metropolitan areas like greater Boston, there are several navigable rivers and bodies of water nearby. A canoe offers one of the best ways to enjoy the natural environments.

TOTAL Emergency Care

FOR MAJOR AND MINOR ILLNESSES AND INJURIES

Now patients with minor emergencies don't have to wait in line while more serious problems are treated. Total Emergency Care at Melrose-Wakefield Hospital treats both big and small emergencies quickly. Between the hours of 11 a.m. and 9 p.m., seven days a week, a doctor and nurse from our emergency medical team exclusively treat people with minor problems. You spend less time waiting and more time with the doctor and nurse.

It's not always easy for a person to know how serious a minor emergency might be. That's why it's comforting to know that the treatment you receive is backed by the staff and services of an entire hospital. If your injury or illness is more serious than it seems, you are at a full service hospital.

For medical emergencies, big and small, come to where people care more about you.

About the towns

By PHYLLIS NISSEN

WILMINGTON - "There is no record book of world land speed records for a moderator whizzing through a town meeting. But if such a book did exist, Jimmy Stewart would certainly be in it."

That's the conclusion of the Wilmington Town Crier about the goings-on at Wilmington Town Meeting this year, which saw members "crunching through" a 63-article warrant in less than nine hours, beginning at 1:30 p.m. on a Saturday and wrapping up at 11:20 p.m.; all with Stewart in a starring role.

With the town budget postponed, five articles passed over and nine withdrawn, Stewart focused on forging ahead.

The following articles are noteworthy, according to the Crier, because they did not pass: an article for a new fire pumper was passed over; an article authorizing police to create regulations for burglar alarms was passed over; and three articles proposing to rezone land on Main Street at or near the Woburn line for "general business" were defeated.

NORTH READING - The North Reading 1971 Class Reunion Committee is still looking for some or all of the following: Sue Bishop, Amy Braveman, Kevin Conroy, Diane Crowley, Diana Falle, Everett Groaton, Sandra Jewell, Susan Malmberg, Joe McGinley, Louise Pecevich, John Sullivan, Donna Walsh, Richard Weyland, Therese Weyland, Sally Jacquard, George Madden, Terry Ross, Richard Walton, Sandy Fox, and Kathy Colbourn.

If you know the whereabouts of any of the above, please contact Ann Morrisette, Missi Diaz Standley or the Reunion Committee, P.O. Box 525, North Reading 01864.

LYNNFIELD - Because the Lynn Public Library lost its state certification due to insufficient funding, the Lynnfield Library Trustees have reconsidered their decision to eliminate the book-borrowing privileges of Lynn residents. At the most, although Lynn residents were not allowed to check out books, they can use Lynnfield's other services.

STONEHAM - The Executive Office of Communities and Development has granted Stoneham $50,000, most of which will go to its Main Street business district.

The state funds will help subsidize a full-time Main Street Manager and will provide technical assistance to the community in the program's first year.

Funded through the Federal Community Development Block Grant Program, the Main Street Grant Program aims to help cities and towns become self-supporting through joint private and public sector participation. But what we want to know is ... who's running for Mayor of Main Street?

SENIOR CENTER - Wilmington Town Manager Mike Cairra recently attended a special meeting of the Council on Aging, in an effort to help seniors understand why he felt it should become the Commission of the Elders, part of the Department of Elder Services - and to help allay their fears that the department would be placed in the hands of those who could not understand the needs of senior citizens.

MWH unveils new labor delivery suite

The Melrose-Wakefield Hospital has opened an all-new Labor and Delivery Suite -- part of its now-totally-renovated Maternity Department.

At ceremonies marking the opening, Richard S. Quinlan, hospital president, noted that, with the completion of the Labor and Delivery project, Melrose-Wakefield has finished "a comprehensive program to transform the Maternity Department into an ultra-modern facility from one end to the other."

The program started in the mid-1980s with the rebuilding and re-equipping of the newborn Nursery, and continued with the remodeling of the post-partum unit, where new mothers stay after giving birth.

All of the work, including the latest phase in Labor and Delivery, has taken place on the second floor of the hospital building located at the corner of Lebanon and Porter streets in Melrose.

"From the beginning," said Mr. Quinlan, "our intention was to create a department that was, first and foremost, a top-of-the-line, modern medical facility, and second, a very comfortable, safe and happy place for mothers, newborns and their families. I think we succeeded on both counts."

The new Labor and Delivery Suite is designed so that a woman can labor, give birth and spend a period of recovery all in one room. In routine cases, this means the woman stays in the room with her newborn for one to two hours after the delivery. She is moved then to the post-partum unit, or "Richard A. Morelli, M.D., Maternity Suite," as it is formally known.

The Labor and Delivery Suite features:

- Five beautiful, spacious and completely equipped Labor/Delivery/Recovery Rooms -- known as LDRs. Each LDR is a single room for one patient, which enhances privacy and comfort not only for the patient, but also for the spouse, or support person, accompanying her. Each LDR has its own private bathroom, with shower.

- A nurses' station that is centrally located in the Labor and Delivery Suite. None of the LDRs is more than a few steps from this station, which allows for prompt provision of care, more efficient care and easier interaction between staff and patients.

A central, computerized patient monitoring system designed and manufactured by the Hewlett-Packard Corp. The system makes it possible for the staff to monitor constantly the status and progress of women in labor, as the fetal monitors in each LDR are connected directly to it. The system also extends to the doctor's lounge and operating room.

A self-contained operating room that has all of the latest equipment. Used primarily for Caesarean deliveries, the operating room is part of the Labor and Delivery Suite, but is separated from the rest of the unit by a sterile corridor.

Attractive decor, fixtures and furnishings throughout the suite, which was designed to be cheerful and as "non-clinical" as possible. In all of the LDRs, for example, the medical equipment is kept out of sight, concealed by special panels and curtains, or in wood cabinets, until it is actually needed. This allows a woman to labor in a comfortable, home-like setting for as long as possible.

Conducting tours of the Labor and Delivery Suite, the nurses in the Maternity Department talk enthusiastically about the new patient monitoring system, the operating room, the special lighting, and all the other modern medical features.

For more information on the Maternity program at Melrose-Wakefield Hospital, or to arrange a tour of the new facilities, contact the Public Relations Department, (617) 979-3507.

Photo Memorabilia

When they got to the scene it looked like a false alarm as nothing could be seen.

However, one of the firefighters opened up a door to the building and got knocked across the street from the blast of heat and flames that were allowed to escape.

Brearley started his career working as a copy boy for the Record American after school and on weekends in 1963.

His almost 33-years of experience has earned him a Pulitzer Prize as part of the Herald American staff that took shots of the Blizzard of 1978. Brearley has also won awards and citations from Associated Press, United Press International, the Boston Press Photographers and the National Press Photographers.

Brearley said that his father had passed away when he was 14, and the photographers at the newspaper started to notice his interest in their craft and took him under their collective wing.

"I used to go into the photo room," Brearley said. "Something would come over me when I would see the gentlemen with their Speed Graphic cameras."

Brearley also remembers spending a lot of time poring over the collection of glass plate negatives in the newspaper's morgue. He added that he would spend most of his time studying the sports photos.

At one point he finally got a shot at becoming a photographer's apprentice.

The year 1963 was also Brearley's first experience covering an historic event, albeit from a distance.

On the day that former President John F. Kennedy was assassinated, Brearley was working. One of the editors threw him a camera and he was assigned to follow New York Columnist Bob Considine, who was in Boston. The pair went out into the streets and did man-in-the-street interviews with Brearley taking the pictures.

Of his apprenticeship, Brearley said "I learned a trade that no one can ever learn in school. I learned from the best."

He added "You can't buy an education like that."

Brearley is now passing that education on to his oldest son, Dennis, a senior at Reading High School. His youngest, Matthew, is a freshman at Reading High.

His family and business are a source of pride for Brearley. "Starting my own business was the most satisfactory experience of my life."

"I have a great family. We work together. What more could you want?"

Brearley pride is related in the quality of his work.

Brearley states that he does not use any copies of negatives nor does he retouch them in any way. He believes that "in their original condition the prints best represent the people and places of their time."

Rather than make a copy of a negative, Brearley and Susan will take the time to piece together those glass negatives that have been broken. They keep the pieces in place by "sandwiching them together" between two pieces of glass.

All of the prints are hand reproduced using equipment that includes a 100-year old Elwood to reproduce wall murals and a 1938 Eastman Auto Focus Model D Enlarger.

His reproduction process is the same style used in 1908.

Because of the age of some his equipment, Brearley has had to develop makeshift repair methods when something breaks down.

He found that a bicycle chain would do the trick when a similar part broke on his enlarger.

As to the authenticity of his negatives, prints from his collection have been used in several movies shot in the Boston area.

In "The Verdict" with Paul Newman, his photos were used to decorate a courtroom judge's chambers.

Other movies have included "The Brinks Robbery" and "Streets of Gold," the story of James Michael Curley's life.

Although he no longer works for the newspapers, Brearley keeps his hand in the business by shooting for the Red Sox, and the Celtics whenever they are in town.

Brearley is also a contributor to the Jimmy Fund and has been known to donate his time, talents and collection to that charity and its work on children's cancer research.

CAR CARE TIDBITS: RAISE THAT HOOD

If you're among the 80% of drivers who pump their own gas, you're probably among the majority of motorists who fail to check under their hoods often enough. In this case, suggests the Car Care Council, it may be wise to patronize the full service pumps once a month so the attendant can check fluids, belts, tire pressure and other vital parts of the car.

ROVING

the Republican party, charged Hubert Humphrey with being "soft on communism." So much backlash erupted that Agnew was coerced into retracting the statement. Agnew was told that it was a McCarthy era-like statement, to which Agnew replied that he'd never heard anyone use the expression "soft on communism."

While on the subject of Spiro Agnew: his political career was somewhat meteoric. His election as vice-president came just ten years after his first election to an office, which was vice-president of his local Kiwanis Club.

In 1969, Neil Armstrong placed on the moon a plaque which read "July 1969 A.D." The plaque should have read "July A.D. 1969." By the time Armstrong spotted the error, it was too late; he was already on his way to the moon, so the astronaut went ahead and placed the plaque anyway.

J. Edgar Hoover was known as a very superstitious fellow. For example, the first director of the FBI refused to allow anyone to walk on his shadow, fearing that it would bring him bad luck.

Richard Nixon became the first president to ride in an inaugural parade that was pigeon-proof. Prior to his 1972 inaugural parade, Pennsylvania Avenue was sprayed with a special chemical that kept pigeons away until after the parade was over.

Town Day on tap in Winchester

This year's Winchester Town Day will be a healthy and fun event for all ages. The fair, held in association with Winchester Hospital, the Winchester Board of Health and the Fire Fighters Union, will take place from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., on Saturday, June 8th at the Main Fire Station.

Winchester Hospital will be offering free blood pressure, Glaucoma and height and weight checks, back and hearing screenings and Lung Capacity tests. In addition, cholesterol screenings will be offered for only $7 and blood sugar testing for only $4. The National Guard will present exciting demonstrations during the day including a team of parachutists and infantry unit.

A Karate demonstration will also be presented as well as CPR and Chokesaver instruction. A First Aid booth, run by Visiting Nurse and Health Care, Inc., will be available for anyone needing minor medical assistance.

Stop by the Winton Club table to receive a free Daisy!

For more information, call The Education Department at Winchester Hospital at (617) 756-2220.

CAR CARE TIDBITS: TIRE CARE

How long should a tire last? A lot longer than most of them do, says Car Care Council. Most tires land in the junk pile before their normal life expectancy because of neglect: underinflation or overinflation, incorrect wheel alignment or balance. Take a good look at your tires this spring. Maintaining them costs little, replacing them can be expensive.

Until 1974, a law in Texas allowed a husband to kill his wife's paramour if he caught them in the act of making love.

One of Gerald Ford's final acts as president was to grant a full presidential pardon to Iva Toguri D'Aquino, better known as Tokyo Rose, who broadcast Japanese propaganda to American GIs in the Pacific during World War II.

More than ten years before he ran for president, Jimmy Carter was invited to join the racist White Citizens Council. Carter turned the invitation down, indicating he would rather flush his dues down the toilet rather than give the money to them.

Jimmy Carter's brother Billy, ran the family's peanut farm while the former lived in the White House. Interestingly, Billy was allergic to peanuts!

Woodchips

By ANTHONY MANCONI

I will never be a good poker player because I advertise my emotions by the expressions on my face. For instance, Kathy can tell instantly when I've been to my sister Maureen's house. I generally come home talking to myself, my face is flushed and I don't even say "hello" to my Golden Retriever. "Well!" Kathy shouted, "What the heck was the argument about this time?" "Little Danny, who is about one and a half year's old, is just learning to walk," "So, what's the big deal?" Kathy asked. "Well, Maureen extended her arms for Danny to walk to her and when he had just about reached her, she pulled her arms back and Danny fell flat on his face. When I rushed over to try to pick the poor kid up, my sister pushed me away. "Leave him alone," she exclaimed. "He has to learn to get back up by himself." "But-t-t," I stuttered, "you tricked him by pulling your arms away." "Listen here Fatso," she screamed, "that's the way 'life' is and the sooner he learns it, the better." Danny picked himself up but he didn't stop crying. "Aren't you going to console the poor kid?" "Nope," Maureen snapped, "when he gets tired of crying he'll stop." "For crying out loud (no pun intended), he's only one and a half years old - see, Ma never brought 'us' up this way." "Look you old goat, the world is a lot different now and besides 'four eyes' he's my kid not yours 'our mind your own bee's wax." I came home with one of those Number 89 TV headaches.

What my brothers and sisters and I had was a father for discipline and a mother to run to for consolation. Woodchips congratulates Al and Millie Pizzano on their 56th wedding anniversary. I told Al that I've been married for 29 years and I'm still in love with the same woman - if my wife finds out she'll kill me. A dentist's epitaph, "I have filled my last cavity."

My Editor received a letter saying, "Dear Sir, I have just bought a new kitchen disposal at Stearn's Hardware and I no longer need the Woodchips Column to wrap the garbage, so please cancel my subscription!" The three stages of life are "Childhood," "Adulthood" and "You're looking Wonderful!"

"I can't find a cause for your illness," a physician said to Mario DiMino. "To be perfectly frank, I think it is due to drinking." "In that case," Mario replied, "I'll come back when you're sober."

Johnny Ave consulted a lawyer saying, "I want to find out if I have grounds for a divorce." "Are you married?" "Yes sir, of course," Johnny exclaimed. "Okay, you have sufficient grounds."

Joseph Foley is a star investigator with FDA. His original intentions were to become a mailman. When he took the letter carrier's exam he came to the question, "How far is it to the moon?" Joe got up and started to walk out. He explained to the proctor, "If that's how far my route may be - forget it!" Richard Hamel told me, "A mamma mosquito said to her family, 'Now children, be good today and mamma will take you to a Nudist Camp tonight!'

Dennis Tully came running home with two black eyes. "I see that you were fighting again," his mother said. "Haven't I told you to count to a hundred whenever you lost your temper?" "I know, I know, Ma," explained Dennis. "The trouble is," Dennis said, "Jimmy's mother only told him to count to fifty."

A politician who had changed his views rather radically was congratulated by a colleague who said, "I'm glad you've seen the light." "I didn't see the light," came the terse reply, "I felt the heat." I guess almost everyone who reads this column has read more than once how I 'hate' long winded, 'motor mouth' orators. So, with that in mind - if you are invited to be the guest speaker for any occasion, especially graduation, for crying out loud be brief. People will forget whatever you say anyway, but, will remember how long you were.

Father John Crispo said to Wayne, "I'm not sure, but weren't you sleeping during my sermon this morning?" "Yes, I fell asleep - your sermon was so long." "I didn't think it was long," replied Father John. "That's the trouble with most clergymen who deal with Eternity," Wayne said. "They don't think anything else is long." Marion Gould said to her husband George, "I'm giving our former maid a reference for a new job. I've said that she's impertinent, undependable and lazy. Now, I'd like to say something good about her. What do you suggest?" George replied, "You could say that she eats well and she sleeps soundly!"

Movie Reviews Rochelle Hagan "Soapdish" "Ambition"

"Soapdish" Starring Sally Field, Kevin Kline. Directed by Michael Hoffman. Screenplay by Robert Harling, Andrew Bergman. Produced by Aaron Spelling, Alan Greisman. Rated PG-13.

It's fun and glossy and bubbly. It will also fly out of your thoughts as soon as the theatre doors slam behind you.

"Soapdish" is one of those flicks that couldn't be more perfect for a hot summer (or spring) evening. It's as soothing as a nice, hot bath. Then its one long joke is gone from your thoughts as quickly as a burst soap bubble.

Sally Fields plays the matriarch of an afternoon soap opera family full of nasty secrets, backstabbing politics and desperate actors trying to climb up a slippery ladder. And that's just backstage. Unfortunately, there really aren't enough of these grasping machinations to keep the plot from spinning toward a frenzied ending many of us could spot 20 minutes earlier.

While the plot is tepid, the cast of "The Sun Also Sets" is hot. Everyone looks simply marvelous in their beaded and elaborate costumes, dripping cleavage or bulging pecks all over a silly Caribbean set. Most of the cast, especially Field, Kevin Kline, Robert Downey, Jr., and Cathy Moriarty, instill lots of physical humor into the flick. Some of them even toss off asides that are much funnier than the film's bigger jokes.

Alas, afternoon soaps are an easy target, and director Michael Hoffman lets the pace lag about mid-way. Pulling in the reins a little would have made the film less draggy as it wound down. Frantic flailings just don't work if there isn't enough plot to sustain the actors. Also, more backstage dirt, even a bit more bitchiness, could have kept the humor fresher. If as much attention had been paid to the script as to the costumes and set design, "Soapdish" would have been more than a little summer diversion.

"Ambition," Starring Lou Diamond Phillips, Clancy Brown.

Directed by Scott D. Goldstein. Produced by Richard E. Johnson. Screenplay by Lou Diamond Phillips. Rated R.

How do you spell contrived? A-m-b-i-t-i-o-n.

There are a lot of things wrong with this low-budget stinker, not the least of which are the amateurish acting and production values. As for the inane script, the leading actor has no one to blame but himself.

Lou Diamond Phillips, who has been chewing up the scenery ever since a fine performance in "Stand and Deliver," is not only way over the top in this smarmy little thriller, but he also penned the screenplay. "Ambition" is supposed to be a psychological thriller in which a frustrated writer tricks a paroled psychotic into murdering again, just so the writer can claim the paperback rights. Blech.

The audience is supposed to believe a premise that is preposterous even to moviegoers who readily accept the resurrection of Jason Voorhees of "Friday the 13th" fame each time he rises from the dead. But "Ambition" never sets us up for a fantasy. We must simply accept the fact that a failed and unpublished writer could easily gain access to an incarcerated murderer (Clancy Brown) and then simply rearrange this man's life upon his parole. Double blech.

As the director had little plot with which to work, he relied on pseudo-artistic camera angles and goofy mood music. It doesn't work. Neither does Phillips as Mitchell, the writer. There is nothing original about his portrayal of a man descending into insanity. His performance is cliché-riddled and one-dimensional. Also, the guy is a real bouncer. We don't like him, but neither are we overly fond of his victim, played by Clancy Brown. So, who are we supposed to cheer for?

More convincing than Phillips is Brown, who brings quite a lot of sorrow to his role of a recovering psycho and rueful murderer. In some ways, it's almost a shame to see him, along with Academy Award-winning actor Haing S. Ngor, in this film. It may be great to see them both working, but it's too bad they appeared in a film that will be out of the public's conscience before it even arrives. As for Phillips, someone should take away his typewriter. And his SAG card.

Thelma & Louise is a feminist/buddy/road movie with an ending that will leave you with a slack jaw, and plenty to talk about. Susan Sarandon and Geena Davis take control of their actions as they lose control of their lives while on a simple weekend fishing trip. An unexpected delight. Rated R ****

Wild Hearts Can't be Broken is typical Disney fare about a young, Depression-era girl with dreams of show business. Based on a true story, this version is highly sanitized and sentimental. The kids will like it, but it's a bit too treacly for the rest of us. Rated G **

Drop Dead Fred is a boorish comedy in which a young woman's make-believe friend returns from her youth to help her through a bumpy patch in her life. Rik Mayall is properly manic as the invisible buddy, but the movie is heavy-handed and not terribly funny. Rated PG-13 **

From S-7

Aunt Nora burst into my house on one of her short two hour visits. She pointed a finger at me and exclaimed, "Hey you idiot, aren't those the neckties that I've given you that you're using to tie up your tomato plants?" "Yes, they are dear Auntie and I want you to know I don't need any scarecrow this summer. Those awful designs and colors will scare rabbits, gophers and crows away."

A super salesman was trying to sell Kathy a "home freezer." He pointed out that she could save enough on food bills to pay for the freezer. "Sounds good," Kathy said. "The trouble is that we're paying for our washing machine on the laundry bills we save and we're paying the mortgage on this house with the rent money we've been saving. Truthfully, Chipper and I can't afford to save any more money right now!"

Volcanoes

Omni Theater Special

The fury of volcanoes comes to life on the biggest screen in Boston when Ring of Fire debuts at the Museum of Science's Mugar Omni Theater on June 21.

In the region that edges the continents and islands surrounding the Pacific Ocean, volcanoes erupt so often that the area is known as the "ring of fire." This new Omni film brings viewers within inches of these erupting volcanoes and their pools of bubbling lava that boil beneath the earth's crust at temperatures from 1,600 to 4,000 degrees Fahrenheit. The sounds of volcanic eruptions are so powerful on the Mugar Omni Theater's 84 speakers, that viewers can actually feel the eruptive force. Among the more than 500 active volcanoes in this region, Mt. St. Helens, Navidad in Chile, Sakurajima in Japan, and Mount Merapi in Indonesia are captured in this film in their ferocious eruptive states.

The geological phenomena of these volcanic eruptions are brought to life through special computer graphics that take Omni viewers on an incredible journey from the center of the Earth, through volcanic conduits and up to the Earth's surface.

"The film introduces us to aspects of our world seldom seen," says Museum President David W. Ellis. "It gives you the sense of being there in person. You realize the power of nature."

Ellis adds that the film is more than just the story of geological activity and visceral thrills. "Ring of Fire also chronicles the lives of the people who live in the shadow of these volcanoes - how they adapt to them, respond to them and survive their incredible fury."

Viewers travel to the island of Sakurajima, where they see how its 7,000 inhabitants have adapted to the volatile nature of their motherland - from volcanic ash-proof shopping centers to plows that regularly remove volcanic ash from their streets.

Viewers also visit Indonesia and witness Indonesian rituals to appease the fire god of the sacred volcanic mountain of Gunung Agung. Indonesian tribes believe the fire god, in different forms, is alive atop nearly all of Indonesia's some 140 volcanoes. These rituals reflect the tribes' ancient understanding that paradise and catastrophe go hand in hand.

The popular Omni short film New England Time Capsule returns to the Omni Theater with Ring of Fire. This five minute film, the first to be produced in New England using Omnimax technology and equipment, contains spectacular footage of Boston and New England. Ring of Fire runs through 1991. Admission to the Omni Theater is $6 for adults and $4.50 for children 4-14 and senior citizens. For more information or to reserve tickets call the Museum of Science at (617) 523-6664.

THE FURY OF VOLCANOES that ring the Pacific Ocean are brought to life in the newest film at the Mugar Omni Theater, "Ring of Fire," beginning June 21. More than seven years in the making, this film captures volcanic eruptions like the Navidad Volcano in southern Chile, pictured above, as it ejects a dense column of ash more than five miles into the sky during its eruption in 1988.

Camp Evergreen holds 2nd annual picnic

NATIVE AMERICAN INDIAN Frank Greenhalgh and Beverly Greenhalgh were special guests at the Camp Evergreen Open House and Family Picnic

Sunday, June 2nd, Camp Evergreen in Andover celebrated its second annual Family Picnic with special guests, native Americas, Frank and Beverly Greenhalgh. Frank is from the Indian Tribe Abnaki of the Maine and Canadian area and Beverly has an Indian heritage rich in lore from the "Lenilanapi" Tribe of Delaware.

This guest appearance highlighted the days activities of swimming, picnicking and enjoying the camp activities as families of campers and perspective campers. A counsel fire was built and Beverly and Frank Greenhalgh described some of the cultural and religious traditions of the blessings of the circle ceremonies of their Indian tribes. They also taught some of the Native American dances to the parents and campers and showed their handiwork of hand made Indian tools and musical instruments. The Indian couple are for Lowell and are eager to share their native traditions to create awareness and understanding of their beliefs.

In addition to eight weeks of camp activities, Camp Evergreen has a two week program titled "Indian Summer." During this special addition to the regular camp activities, Indian lore is taught and many of the games and crafts become an integral part of the program.

Over 200 families enjoyed the 10 acres of facilities surrounded by the natural land of the Harold Parker State Forest. When the farm house of the camp was built, this area of Andover was filled with Indians and there is much natural history and documentation of the Indian and White man's struggle.

When not sharing their love of Indian lore and traditions, Frank works for Raytheon in Andover as a Plastics model specialist and Beverly is a nurse at the Lowell hospital. Jim Loscutt, Jr. was fortunate to meet them recently at a "Planting" ceremony in Tyngsboro. Native Americans rent a part of that state forest for their Religious and Cultural ceremonies. Jim Loscutt, Jr. runs the Indian Summer portion of the Camp Evergreen program and has a strong interest in the ways and history of the American Indians.

Camp Evergreen prepares for its 28th season of summer co-ed day camp and particularly looks forward to enjoying and teaching the love of the natural environment to its campers.

Temple Shalom Emeth Open House on June 11th

Temple Shalom Emeth of Burlington, a growing and active reformed Jewish congregation, will be holding its annual Spring membership Open House on June 11th, from 7:30 to 9 p.m. Rabbi Susan Abramson will be present to answer questions about the Temple's various programs and services, as will committee chairpeople and Temple Board members.

Temple Shalom Emeth has been serving Jewish families from Burlington and surrounding communities for the past 23 years with programs in religious education, both child and adult, youth groups, affiliated Sisterhood and Brotherhood organizations and social programming. The Temple offers Friday evening Shabbat worship, as well as High Holiday and festival services and encourages membership participation at every level.

Temple Shalom Emeth has established itself as a leader in the Jewish community in aiding and resettling Jewish refusenik families from the Soviet Union, and the Temple is an active member of the Burlington community, participating in such programs as the Burlington Bread Basket and distributing meals to the elderly. In addition, the Temple sponsors a non-denominational nursery school program on the Temple grounds.

Anyone interested in learning more about Temple Shalom Emeth and its congregation is invited to attend the Spring Open House. Temple Shalom Emeth is located at 14-16 Lexington Street in Burlington. If you have questions or need further information, call the Temple at (617) 272-2351.

Gallery of Homes honors Pat Black for sales success

Pat Black, sales counselor with Gallery of Homes, Fitzgerald & Associates was recently honored at the 1st Quarter Sales Rally for the Gallery of Homes Regional Council. Pat was awarded the highest volume in residential sales for her outstanding work during the first quarter of 1991.

Pat's success throughout the last year and a half tells the whole story. Without any background in real estate or sales, Pat has quickly become one of the areas leading real estate brokers. Pat has attended the required Gallery of Homes programs and has attained her R.E.A.C.H. certificate with the Eastern Middlesex Board of Realtors.

She can always be found helping out with Reading's youth sports programs. Her success can be attributed to her sincere desire and genuine interest in helping people sell their homes and find their dream properties. She is both patient and sensitive to her customers' needs.

For advice and counseling just give Pat a call at (617) 944-0305 or (508) 664-4709.

"Successful Fathers of the Nineties" topic in Winchester

This year for Father's Day, give dad a night to indulge in himself - after all, dad's are people, too!

Winchester Hospital is now offering a special program exclusively for Fathers' Day, to be held on Monday, June 17th from 7:15 to 9:15 p.m. at the Regional Health Center in Wilmington.

David Klarman, LICSW, from Middlesex Associates, will present "Successful Father of the Nineties," a look into fathers' challenging roles of parenting today's youth. In the second part of the program, Laurie McLaughlin, Physical Therapist at the Regional Health Center in Wilmington, will present "The Weekend Athlete." Today's dad works hard and plays hard. Laurie will explain how to prevent sports injuries.

The fee for this program is only $9. Pre-registration is required. Call Winchester Hospital for more information at (617) 756-2220.

Drains Run Slow?

You'll never have a slow running, or clogged drain again! The secret? Clean drains don't run slow.

Slow drains, or periodic clogs, are SIGNALS that a thick layer of GOOK is clogging your pipes. Grease, hair, and other waste stick to your pipes, with every use. This gook deposits along the entire length of the pipe. It chokes your pipes gradually, as it gets thicker and thicker.

Conventional drain openers can't fix slow drains. They react chemically on the surface of the gook. To be effective, they must remain in contact with the waste. Even a small tunnel through the gook lets them flow out to the sewer, leaving the gook behind.

In the past, the only way to remove this build-up was to rooter your pipes. An expensive, temporary measure.

Now, with just a few minutes each month, you can easily clean out your pipes... and KEEP them clean with Plumb Clean. Its totally unique formula clings, and penetrates deep into the gook. That is what allows it to liquefy even years of build-up. Plumb Clean will clean the entire length of your pipes. It will make your drains run like new, when used as directed. This penetrating action is so revolutionary, we stand behind Plumb Clean with a money-back guarantee!

Saves Money. A 1 lb. container of Plumb Clean holds up to 41 drain treatments. Even if drain openers could fix slow drains, it would take over 10 quart bottles to get the same number of treatments. Plumb Clean costs about 35¢ per treatment. We don't know of anything that cleans drains for less.

Safe Too. Conventional drain openers are dangerous chemicals. They can injure eyes on contact. They can release deadly vapors, in some situations. Some may damage your fixtures. Plumb Clean will not burn skin, or eyes. It will not release harmful fumes. When used as directed, it is 100% safe for people, and of course, all plumbing.

So, if your drains are giving you a SIGNAL, act now. Get safe, guaranteed Plumb Clean today!
